50% Off at Cosmo's Bar & Lounge

The Scoop: In a small corner in the Lakewood neighborhood of Dallas sits a dive bar, which from the outside looks almost as if it's closed for business. But don't be fooled. Once you step inside Cosmo's, you'll be transported to an entirely different era: one full of groovy lamps, mismatched furniture, classic movie posters and a faux fireplace straight out of the 70s.

Scout Notes: This eleven-year-old martini bar boasts a charming VHS collection of over 200 titles, including cult favorites like Pulp Fiction and Office Space. While movies play—closed-captioned, mind you—into the wee hours of the night, the award-winning Jukebox spews out songs by Velvet Underground and the Stones.

Although Cosmo's offers some great happy hour specials, long-time manager Jackson likes to think of the dimly-lit watering hole as a "midnight bar"—meaning the real crowd doesn't show up until most people are headed home for a cup of tea and their cozy beds. Don't be surprised if Jackson also offers you some lovin': Sex With Jackson, a fruity blend of strawberry vodka, pomegranate liqueur and cranberry juice, is one of the top selling martinis at Cosmo's. Of course, if you're feeling creative, you can always cozy up to a customary Cosmo, made with plenty of hippie love, not to mention citrus vodka, Cointreau, lime juice and cranberry juice.

But if you really want to fit in at Cosmo's, your best bet is to request a showing of The Birdcage, which you can enjoy while you sip on a dirty martini and nosh on one of Cosmo's gourmet pizzas, which can be purchased by the quarter, half or a full 16-inch pie. This kitschy gin mill is famous for their Greek pizza, which subs in pesto for traditional tomato sauce and is topped with feta cheese, tomatoes and black olives. The American Pizza, full of hamburger, bacon, onion and tomatoes, is also a real crowd pleaser—most likely for its use of three cheeses: American, Cheddar and Mozzarella.
